Blizzard Warning Storm To Bring Up To 20" Of Snow

The National Weather Service upgraded the forecast to a Blizzard Warning for our region, with snow accumulations of up to 20 inches now expected.

The NWS statement reads: BLIZZARD WARNING REMAINS IN EFFECT FROM 1 PM THIS AFTERNOON TO 6 PM EST MONDAY

Blizzard conditions expected. Total snow accumulations between 16 and 20 inches. Winds gusting as high as 55 mph. Portions of southern Connecticut and southeast New York. From 1 PM this afternoon to 6 PM EST Monday.

Visibilities may drop below 1/4 mile due to falling and blowing snow. Whiteout conditions are expected and will make travel treacherous and potentially life-threatening. The strong winds and weight of snow on tree limbs may down power lines and could cause sporadic power outages. Travel could be very difficult to impossible. Areas of blowing snow could significantly reduce visibility. The hazardous conditions could impact the Monday morning and evening commutes. Strong winds could cause tree damage.

Heaviest snow and strongest winds are expected tonight into Monday. Travel should be restricted to emergencies only. If you must travel, have a winter survival kit with you. If you get stranded, stay with your vehicle.

Blizzard local Department of Transportation information services for the latest road conditions. A Blizzard Warning means severe winter weather conditions are expected or occurring. Falling and blowing snow with strong winds are likely. This will lead to whiteout conditions, making travel extremely dangerous. Do not travel. If you must travel, have a winter survival kit with you. If you get stranded, stay in your vehicle.

Laroche Announces CT Senate Bid

On February 8th, Newtown resident and Board of Finance member Amybeth LaRoche announced her candidacy as a Republican for the 28th CT Senate District, seeking to replace Senator Tony Hwang. What follows is her announcement:

Today, I officially announced my candidacy for Connecticut's 28th Senate District, a Connecticut where every generation can rise.

I am deeply grateful for the friends, neighbors, and community leaders from all four towns who showed up and stood with us as we launched this campaign.

I'm honored to announce my candidacy to represent the incredible communities of Fairfield, Newtown, Easton, and Bethel.

First, a heartfelt thank you to Senator Tony Hwang for his years of dedicated service.

Tony's leadership, accessibility, and tireless advocacy have left a lasting mark on our district and our state, and I look forward to building on that strong foundation.

This campaign is grounded in a simple truth. Rise and rise again until the quiet majority becomes an unstoppable force.

I'm Amybeth LaRoche, a proud American from a military family, a devoted mother, author, public speaker, and experienced government contracting professional.

I have built my career uncovering waste, driving transparency, and delivering results, and I will bring that same grit and determination to Hartford.

I am running because Connecticut deserves performance, not permanence. Families are working harder, paying more, and getting less while Hartford keeps asking for more without accountability.

Leadership must be earned through results, not name recognition.

In the State Senate, I will fight to restore fiscal responsibility and ensure every tax dollar is used wisely.

Bethel, for example, with the lowest household income of any of the compared towns, is proposing an Athletic Director salary 121% of Newtown's and 10% higher than the average for the combined five neighboring communities. All while having household income 34% below the average for its neighboring communities and 46% below Newtown's. Bethel also has the lowest Household income of any of the DRG D communities we compared, although not the lowest in the entire DRG.

With the annual budget process heating up, a number of voters have taken to social media questioning the pay levels of various positions in town government and our schools.

In the next few issues, The Community Gazette will be publishing a look at various positions and comparing pay to neighboring communities rather than relying on six and 20 year old comparisons with communities in artificially defined District Reference Groups (DRG).

Things To Do

Read To Sydney!

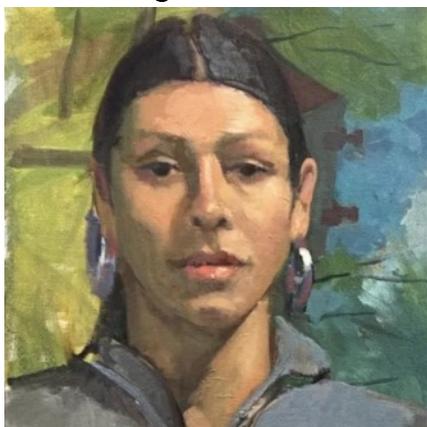

Children 5+ are invited to take turns to read to Sydney, a trained therapy dog. Reading to Sydney provides a judgment free space for many children to increase their reading skills, self confidence, and encourages a love for reading! Sydney's handler, Hayley, also happens to be a pediatric occupational therapist and loves to volunteer her time with Sydney at the library. So bring a favorite book, take a peek at Sydney's book, or pick one out at the library before the event. March 4th and 18th, 2026 at 4 p.m. at the Danbury Library.

Tax Help

The C.H. Booth Library is pleased to announce FREE income tax assistance, provided through a partnership between the AARP Foundation and the IRS. This service will be available on Thursdays until April 9, 2026. Don't miss this opportunity to receive expert help with your taxes.

Painting Demonstration

On Wednesday March 25, 2026 at 1:30pm, Frank Bruckman will be demonstrating a portrait in oil. This event will be at The Newtown Senior Center, 8 Simpson Street in Newtown, CT. All are welcome and admission is free.

Pets

Meet Chessy

Meet Chessy, a sweet and gentle one-month-old gray and white kitten from the "Parent Trap" litter. She was found last summer living in a dilapidated garage in Watertown with her mom, Elizabeth James, and siblings Nick Parker, Hallie, and Annie. She is the last left of her litter and has been waiting over a year to find her forever home. Chessy is reserved at first, once she gets to know you, she's incredibly sweet and enjoys gentle pets. She's not one to seek attention right away, but once she feels comfortable, she'll quietly approach and show her affection. When it's treat time, Chessy will come running and politely take them right from your hand—her way of showing her trust and appreciation. She is very social with other cats and will happily walk over to purr and greet any kitty who comes by. She adores the fosters cats so in Chessa must go to a home with a confident, friendly feline. She was very shy in the beginning but has made wonderful progress and is ready to find a patient and experienced home where she can continue to grow into a loving, confident kitten.

An Election-Year Budget That Keeps SEBAC Comfortable

An Election-Year Budget That Keeps SEBAC Comfortable

In an election year, Connecticut's state employee unions appear positioned for another significant round of compensation growth.

While lawmakers debate fiscal guardrails and warn of federal funding uncertainty, the governor's own budget documents show tens — and in some cases hundreds — of millions of dollars being set aside for future wage adjustments, healthcare growth, and pension-related obligations tied to SEBAC contracts.

At the same time, at least one lawmaker is proposing a very different path: a two-year wage freeze for state employees.

The Quiet Cushion: $169 Million on Hand

Start with the Reserve for Salary Adjustment (RSA) account — a fund administered by the Office of Policy and Management that exists specifically to cover collective bargaining costs, wage settlements, accrual payouts, and other negotiated compensation items.

As of December 31, 2025, that account held:

- $169.7 million in the General Fund
$10.9 million in the Special Transportation Fund

The RSA exists for one purpose: to absorb the cost of negotiated wage and benefit increases. OPM's own reporting notes that additional transfers tied to finalized bargaining agreements are likely before the fiscal year concludes.

Put plainly, the money for future union obligations is already sitting in reserve.

- Retirees cashing out accrued time? Covered.
New wage agreements? Covered.
Contractual payouts baked into SEBAC deals? Covered.
And the fund is not shrinking — it's being replenished.

OPM Reserve for Salary Adjustment Account - FY 2026 Through December 31, 2025

Table with 3 columns: Source of Funding, General Fund, Special Transportation Fund. Rows include FY 2026 Available Funds, Transfers and Expenditures as of 12/31/2025, and Total Available as of 12/31/2025.

$186 Million for "Salary Adjustments"

The scale becomes clear in the Office of Fiscal Analysis (OFA) breakdown of the second year of the biennial budget.

For FY27, the upcoming fiscal year, the budget includes:

- $186,551,369 in the General Fund
$19,864,541 in the Special Transportation Fund

This is not a last-minute addition. The money was built into the FY26–FY27 budget adopted in 2025.

That is nearly $206 million positioned for raises, payouts, and contract costs for the 35 bargaining units that make up SEBAC.

In other words, the funding for the next round of agreements is already embedded in the budget.

All of this comes as lawmakers caution about fiscal uncertainty and warn against weakening the state's guardrails. The rhetoric is restraint. The numbers suggest business as usual.

Health Care Costs Continue Their Climb
Healthcare spending is rising just as steadily.

According to OFA, the governor's FY27 budget increases spending on state employee health benefits by:

- $71.26 million for active employees
$38.84 million for retired employees

That's more than $110 million in additional General Fund costs in a single year, on top of:

- $779 million for active employee health benefits
$957 million for retiree health benefits

These are not new programs. They are the ongoing costs of maintaining benefits negotiated under SEBAC contracts.

When lawmakers describe "fixed costs" squeezing the budget, this is what they mean.

The Pension Pay-Down That Wasn't
Now consider pensions.

The State Employees Retirement System (SERS) requires an Actuarially Determined Employer Contribution (ADEC) each year — the amount actuaries calculate is necessary to maintain solvency.

The governor's revised budget includes:
$5.37 million in additional General Fund contributions
$448,760 in the Special Transportation Fund

Why the increase?

Because the previous budget proposal assumed savings from an additional $500 million pension pay-down, a deposit that was ultimately bypassed and redirected into a Federal Cuts Response Fund. Had that $500 million been applied to pension liabilities, the state would have reduced future required contributions by roughly $41 million annually.

Instead, because that deposit was not made, actuarial requirements increase.

Spend the money elsewhere today, and taxpayers pay more every year going forward.

That is the tradeoff.

A Different Proposal

Against this backdrop, Rep. Tina Courpas (R-Greenwich) has requested legislation to freeze wage and salary increases for state employees for at least two years.

The case for restraint is straightforward. State employee compensation exceeds $10.5 billion annually, with wages alone totaling more than $6 billion. Under Gov. Lamont, state employees have received cumulative wage and step increases of approximately 33%.

Whether such a freeze is politically viable in an election year is another matter.

The governor has previously told AFSCME members:

"Every year that I've been here you've gotten a raise, and every year I'm here, you're going to get a raise."

That statement was delivered not in a budget hearing, but at a closed-door union conference.

The Election-Year Question

Consider the full picture:

- $169+ million currently in the RSA account
$186 million budgeted for salary adjustments
$110+ million in additional health service costs

Higher pension contributions due to a skipped $500 million pay-down

This is not belt-tightening. It is a portrait of steady expansion — in an election year.

Fiscal guardrails were designed to prevent overspending and protect long-term stability. But collectively bargained benefits are long-term commitments that compound — especially when pension deposits are deferred and healthcare costs continue to rise.

When budgets tighten, most programs face scrutiny. Proposals are scaled back. Every dollar is debated.

Yet when it comes to SEBAC obligations, the money appears to be waiting in advance,

Taxpayers may reasonably ask whether this budget reflects fiscal discipline — or election-year priorities.

Opinion - Guest Essay - SB 151

Hello, my name is Dana Benson. I live in Easton, CT, and I am speaking in opposition to Senate Bill 151, which will strip the power to regulate zoning and what gets built in towns away from those towns while mandating that the new standard building lot across CT will be 1/10 of an acre with minimal setbacks and no height restrictions on every lot with public water and sewer. If this passes, you can cut a 1-acre lot into 10 building lots that are 50 feet wide by 100 feet long and build 10 separate townhouses and apartments on a one-acre lot.

Easton borders Bridgeport. We are home to four major reservoirs that supply 90% of Bridgeport's water, and we furnish over 700,000 people in Southern CT with clean drinking water. We are also home to 20 working farms. Our one and three-acre zoning rules were put in place in the 1940's to protect CT's drinking water. Like other rural towns, we play an important role in CT's ecosystem by supplying food and water to the people.

At this week's hearing, the Chairman of the Housing Committee, from Groton, stated that this bill was needed to create 8,000 low-cost housing units in Groton because Electric Boat is expanding employment under a Navy contract, and she repeatedly asked those testifying in opposition, "how they were going to create 8,000 low-cost housing units in Groton."

Her emphasis on the Groton problem caused me to do a little research. Currently, 82% of the 27,000 people working in Groton commute in from other towns.

Tony Sheridan, president of the Chamber of Commerce of Eastern Connecticut, spoke this month about the Electric Boat contract and housing, saying he believes: "the 8,000 new hires at EB can be quickly absorbed into the local housing market, pointing out that New London alone has added nearly 1,000 new units to its stock in the past few years, and other towns such as Waterford and Stonington have been creating new residences at a fast pace as well."

<http://linksit.xyz/eb-to-hire-18000>

I agree it would be good if Groton and cities like Bridgeport

(represented by Vice Chairman Felipe) could build more housing units so that workers didn't have to commute, but I don't understand why the Housing Committee Chairman and the proponents insist on destroying local control of zoning and the zoning regulations of every other town across the state to achieve this goal.

If Groton and Bridgeport want to build more low-cost housing, why don't their leaders and the local Planning and Zoning Commission implement policies like 1/10-acre building lots and others to create such housing? Proponents overlook the fact that commuting to work is common. I commuted two to three hours a day for most of my career, as did my father.

Proponents of the bill say it will help the homeless. I am not so sure. How can the homeless buy homes if they lack jobs and money? I think the homeless need more public support, not more housing units they do not have the money to buy or rent. I support a tax increase to improve and expand existing programs for the homeless, including hotel room subsidies, and, most importantly, mental health treatment.

Proponents say the bill will create starter homes. There is no definition of what constitutes a starter home in the bill. Without defining the price of a starter home, there is nothing to prevent this bill from unleashing a luxury "McMansion" construction boom across the state.

If the goal is to provide moderately priced starter homes, why not pass a bill that offers low-interest loans or grants to income-qualified citizens to rent or buy units at below-market starter home prices?

If I had to summarize this bill in one word, it would be DESTRUCTION:

It will hasten the destruction of historic homes by removing the local authority to protect historic structures after July.

It will hasten the destruction of CT's farms by creating a new incentive to subdivide and develop them, on top of the pressure last year's bill put on farmers to sell by raising their taxes.

It will hasten the destruction of CT's single-family home neighborhoods by creating an incentive to tear down these homes and build townhouses and apartments in their place.

The bill will hasten the destruction of open space across the state by creating an incentive to subdivide and develop land.

It will destroy the power of town zoning boards to require set-asides of conservation land as a condition of subdividing large parcels, removing a major driver of open space conservation in CT.

Why support a law that speeds up the destruction of single-family neighborhoods, historic buildings, open space, and farms?

Why not let zoning boards in cities like Groton and Bridgeport change their zoning rules and use tax breaks and other incentives to create low-cost housing instead?

The Chairman and other proponents argue that the higher taxes paid by buyers of the new 1/10th-of-an-acre units will cover the costs of increased demand for schools and other infrastructure that the increased population will require.

If the increased population attracted by affordable or dense housing offsets the cost of the greater demand for infrastructure through the new taxes they produce, why has Bridgeport, with so much dense housing, experienced a cumulative education budget deficit of $47 million since 2020 and faces a $30 million deficit this year?

The truth is that the increased infrastructure costs will be borne by communities through higher property taxes, another unfunded mandate handed down from Hartford.

Proponents claim that allowing local communities to set zoning rules is discriminatory. The truth is that discrimination in housing has been illegal under the Fair Housing Act since 1968, which prohibits discrimination based on race, color, religion, or national origin in the sale, rental, and financing of housing.

I would ask you to consider the words of Hippocrates, which still guide our doctors today: "FIRST, DO NO HARM."

Pikachu Card Sale Sets Record

Wrestling star Logan Paul recently sold a 1998 Japanese Pikachu Illustrator trading card for more than $16.4 million at auction, shattering the previous record for the most expensive trading card ever sold at auction. "The current hobby consensus is that 41 copies of this card were officially awarded and distributed, with this Logan Paul-backed piece the chief among them," Goldin's description read. "The card is accompanied by a custom wooden presentation box bearing Paul's Maverick logo and a plaque that reads 'Pokémon / Pikachu Illustrator / PSA 10 / 1 of 1.'"

"Due to the scarcity, grand value, and pedigree of this Pikachu Illustrator, this is one of the most significant public offerings of a Pokémon card in the history of the hobby and a potentially once-in-a-lifetime sale."

A.J. Scaramucci, the son of financier and former White House communications director Anthony Scaramucci, purchased the card.

CT Boy Scout Rescued From Mt. Washington

New Hampshire officials report that on the afternoon of Sunday, February 15, 2026, rescue personnel responded to Mt. Washington to assist a 15-year-old Boy Scout from Connecticut who was experiencing a medical emergency after hiking to the summit.

At 1:00 PM, New Hampshire Fish and Game Department Conservation Officers were notified of a 15-year-old male who was experiencing a significant allergic reaction near the summit buildings. Officers quickly learned that the patient was hiking with a group of Boy Scouts from Connecticut, and that the group was tending to him and rendering First Aid. It was also learned that the group had been able to alert an employee of Mt. Washington State Park, who located the individual and got him into a warm building.

Conservation Officers coordinated a rescue effort with New Hampshire State Parks and personnel from Gorham EMS. State Parks readied their Snow Cat and ultimately transported a Conservation Officer and EMS personnel up the Mt. Washington

Auto Road to the summit, arriving there at 3:11 PM. The patient was quickly loaded into the Snow Cat and transported back down the mountain, arriving safely at the base at 4:00. Once roadside, the young man was taken by Ambulance to Androscoggin Valley Hospital in Berlin for further evaluation and treatment.

The patient in this case was found to be prepared for his hike, as was his group. New Hampshire State Parks, Gorham EMS, and New Hampshire Fish and Game were also prepared, which made for a very successful rescue effort.
